Answer Explanations!

Whale shark

The whale shark holds the title for the largest species of any fish, known to reach more than 40 feet in length. It gets its name "whale" for being especially large

Big blue shark

Although it is correct that the blue whale is the largest mammal in the sea, the question states which is the largest fish.

Great white shark

The great white shark is notorious for shark attacks causing many to tremble in fear. It's easy to believe they are ferocious creatures. However, they rank number 10 for the largest fish in the sea.

Giant pacific octopus

Although Giant Pacific Octopus is the largest Octopus they are classified as invertebrates. They fall under the mollusk category in the animal kingdom and are not fish, so therefore this answer is the incorrect sea.
